

I am totally opposed to this action because of the potential for radio wave interference. There is a lot that we do not know about the emanations from high tension power lines as they are currently and adding radio wave emanations will engender a lot of known and unknown risks. There are plenty of conduits available for broadband. Do not add one as risky as this.